Discovery & Connection: Annual Report for Fiscal Year 2026

Founded in 1897 as the Audubon Society of the District of Columbia, our organization has a deep history of rising to environmental challenges.

Our leaders have included luminaries such as renowned naturalists Roger Tory Peterson and Louise Halle, as well as Rachel Carson whose work Silent Spring launched the global environmental movement.

After working with other Audubon groups to pass the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, we went on to protect iconic natural areas that make the DC area special including the C&O Canal, Dyke Marsh, Huntley Meadows and Ten Mile Creek.

Today, Nature Forward engages thousands of nature lovers across DC, Maryland and Virginia. Our educators deliver rich nature experiences and critical ecological knowledge to children and adults. Our restoration experts improve landscapes to support wildlife, climate resilience and human health. And our advocates empower community activists to demand sustainable and equitable policies toward a thriving future for people and nature.

Join us as we build a larger and more diverse community that treasures and protects nature!

A Message from our Executive Director

Dear Nature Forward Community,

Thanks to our supporters, Nature Forward made great strides this year in protecting habitat, advancing sound environmental policies, and inspiring nature champions.

During the academic year, our environmental educators delivered free classes and field trips to more than 11,000 public school students. And this summer, Camp Woodend provided a record 91 weeks of scholarships to ensure that local children can connect with nature regardless of their family's income.

Nature Forward's determined conservation advocates have been on the front lines of data center reform advocacy, building coalitions to demand regulation that protects air, water and community health. Meanwhile, they continue to advocate for tree protection, park funding and rigorous environmental planning for development projects.

Our restoration experts continued to address climate change, improve community health and create wildlife habitat at Woodend Nature Sanctuary and in communities around the region. This year they planted nearly 1,000 native trees, worked with partners to install 3 new conservation landscapes at community hubs, and distributed 300 native plant kits to residents in the urban Anacostia watershed.

The entire Nature Forward staff worked together to host the 6th Naturally Latinos conference in March, uplifting and celebrating environmental champions from a community being stressed like never before.

Thank you for sustaining our growth. In fiscal year 2026, Nature Forward supporters provided more than $3.7 million in grants and contributions. This strong financial foundation fueled impactful programs across our mission pillars: Education, Conservation, and Restoration. Together, we are working toward greener, more sustainable communities throughout the DC region and finding new ways to connect people with the natural world that surrounds and sustains us all.

With gratitude,

Alison Pearce

Our Mission

To inspire residents of the greater Washington, DC, region to appreciate, understand, and protect their natural environment through outdoor experiences, education, and advocacy.

Our Vision

We seek to create a larger and more diverse community of people who treasure the natural world and work to preserve it.

IDEA: Inclusion, Diversity, Equity, and Accessibility

Creating a larger and more diverse community of people who treasure the natural world

As we work to create a larger and more diverse community of people who treasure the natural world and work to preserve it, we recognize the importance of our region's rich diversity being reflected among our membership, staff, board, volunteers, and program participants.

Nature Forward upholds IDEA (Inclusion, Diversity, Equity, and Accessibility) as a key pillar of our mission work. Our strategic plan embeds combating racism and environmental injustice across our program efforts.

We train staff to recognize and work to overcome the unconscious biases that we all carry, and we have created safe spaces for employees to speak up about discrimination.

Our Conservation, Education, and Restoration teams work with communities across the region. We support the rights of all people to a safe and healthy environment. We provide environmental education that sparks joy in nature for people of all ages and abilities. And we help people across the Capital region restore native habitat in their own neighborhoods.

Initiatives like our Naturally Latinos and Taking Nature Black conferences and related events bring together diverse regional and national environmental leaders to inform, inspire, and empower communities on critical environmental issues.

We also deliver high-quality professional development to teachers.

GreenKids works with schools in Montgomery County, MD; Prince George's County, MD; Washington DC; and Loudoun County, VA.

"For our students, particularly those with diverse learning needs, being immersed in nature encourages curiosity, communication, problem-solving, and social interaction in a highly motivating environment. The sensory-rich experiences and opportunities for exploration helped make science concepts both accessible and memorable. Adult Programs

Exploring wild places across the DC Region and beyond

Adult Programs offer a wide range of naturalist-guided walks, classes, hikes, and travel excursions for lifelong learners. Our program leaders love sharing their deep knowledge about the natural world – all while making friends, building community, and exploring the wild places of the greater Washington, DC region.

Experiences range from one-day field trips with a wide variety of topics, locations, and activity levels, to our Natural Heritage series, which offers two-day adventures to regional gems like the James River, West Virginia, and Cape May, to Nature Travel, where you can experience and learn about some of the most awe-inspiring destinations on the planet.

Natural History Field Studies classes are continuing education courses with virtual lectures and hands-on field trips that delve into topics like Introduction to Fungi, Birds of the World, and Chesapeake Bay Ecosystems.

Our Master Naturalists program trains knowledgeable ambassadors and volunteers for the environmental movement.

In FY26, we launched a new Natural History Field Studies course titled Naturalist Tools for Community Science. Capital Nature co-founder Ana Ka'ahanui instructed students on how to use both popular and less-well-known nature apps and participate in community science initiatives. Learners contributed to the City Nature Challenge, biological surveys at Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens, and more. Ana and her class are pictured at a freshwater mussel survey with Jorge Bogantes of the Anacostia Watershed Society.

Adult Program Impacts in FY26

- 1,165 people enjoyed one of 135 naturalist-led field programs across our region, including field exploration, lectures, and travel
- 109 learners took 11 Natural History Field Studies courses

Stream Science

Water Quality Monitoring (WQM)

Nature Forward's Stream Science program has monitored streams in DC and Maryland for more than 30 years. Our community science volunteers serve as the eyes and ears for stream health while connecting surrounding communities with the magic of their local stream.

Volunteers visit their sites three to four times each year to conduct aquatic macroinvertebrate surveys. Index of Biological Integrity ("IBI") scores, which indicate stream health, are calculated from the survey data.

This year, we highlighted the stories of the people who live around the streams in the DC-Metro Region. Check them out and learn more about stream health by visiting our State of the Streams website.

We also produced the new video "How to Sample for Benthic Macroinvertebrates," along with a Spanish-language version, "Cómo Recolectar Macroinvertebrados."

Fortaleciendo comunidades y ecosistemas

Since its launch in 2017, Naturally Latinos has become one of the nation's premier environmental conferences showcasing diversity, inclusion, and equity.

Although centered primarily on issues impacting the Capital Region, the event's focus on environmental justice, empowerment, and belonging in nature resonates with diverse nature professionals and advocates from around the nation and world who face similar challenges in their own communities.

2026 Conference chair Gina Ghertner chose the theme, "Fortaleciendo Comunidades y Ecosistemas (Strengthening Communities and Ecosystems)," to highlight the work Latinos are doing to benefit communities and bring nature back to urban spaces. The event included a virtual day, one in-person conference day in downtown Silver Spring, MD, and one day of outdoor nature experiences.

Volunteers

Making everything we do possible - Thank you!

Nature Forward is fortunate to have volunteers in every branch of work, from stream monitors to field trip leaders. Volunteers are busy every day, leading preschoolers at Woodend, planting trees, and researching important local issues. Our adult volunteers are high school students, retirees and everything in between. We have Master Naturalists, Master Gardeners, hobbyists and novices. Volunteers are outside early in the morning, leading our beginner bird walks, and out late into the evening, listening for frogs as part of FrogWatch. Each day, we are learning and spreading knowledge about the world around us, all while getting our hands dirty.

This year alone, our nearly 350 active volunteers have given 5,280 hours of their time! This service, worth more than $105,000, stays right here within our local community!

Testimonials

"Your program made it really easy to replace larger swathes of my garden with the more beneficial native plants. Everything looked, and still looks so amazing. Many neighbors seemed eager to start planting their own natives after seeing these."

Native Garden Kit Recipient

"Exploring the same spot through the seasons has nurtured my child's curiosity, awareness, and confidence. Woodend will always be a special place for us because of Nature Forward."

Nature Preschool Parent

"On their last day, they were in tears because they did not want the experience to end. They discovered so much about nature and animals and built beautiful friendships."
